- Econ Dev is an excellent overview of macro- (and some micro-) level theory. The course reviews very relevant studies, ties them together thematically and provides great background for anyone who plans on working in international development. It should be a required IDEV course. - Prof. Feler mentioned in class that there would be no basic econometrics requirement for the course next year. As somebody who has neither taken a basic econometrics course nor intermediate macro/micro at SAIS, I would still strongly suggest that students without economics backgrounds be cautious about taking this class before getting a basic understanding of econometrics and a intermediate understanding of economics. Prof. Feler is a great professor; however, he is much more quantitative than qualitative inasmuch as his teaching style. I have struggled a little to keep up with the pace, as I did not have those solid foundations entering the course.

- Professor Feler is rockstar and one of the best teachers at SAIS. He is committed to engaging with students and goes out of his way to make the material accessible and interesting. I would definitely recommend this course to others, as well as his Microeconomics of Development course. - Incredible class with an incredible professor that is clearly going to become a key player in the field. - I would follow Feler to the moon. Seriously one of the best professors at SAIS. This course did overlap considerably with Microeconomics of Development, but I think that was because it was his first time teaching it. Nonetheless, Feler is interesting, engaging and fun. He breaks down complicated concepts and explains them in really straightforward ways. Going to class is like going to economic story-time. Feler's brain is sick and perverted in an awesome econ way--he can make any event relative to what he's teaching and that's part of the fun of it all! - I thought the grading was, at times, somewhat arbitrary. When I brought the matter up with Prof. Feler and the TA, they both understood my reasoning and gave me more credit on my homework assignments. The four problem sets were very long, but fair. Since this is the first time Prof. Feler taught this course, I thought he did a phenomenal job with it. I feel that in the future it's going to be even better.
